A gathering that filled the Orange Hall to the doors did honor to the memory of Corp Walter Pusdy, on Sunday last. Rev. Mr. Wright took as his text the words "He has done what he could." The hall was draped with flags and a large floral wreath was placed below the pulpit, with a motto above it. The Brass Band rendered the Dead March and the National Anthem. Special music was sung by the choir.

The rain yesterday will be a great benefit to the crops.

CONSERVATIVE MEETING

About fifty men attended the Conservative meeting, in the Orange Hall, on Wednesday evening. It was around 9:30 when Chairman Ducklow called the meeting to order and introduced the speakers. W. Wilson, Conservative nominee for this Constituency, spoke for a few minutes and stated that he was in favor of having road work done by contract. T. Tweedie, Calgary, spoke for over an hour and roundly abused the Sifton government for all the sins and omissions in the calendar.

He claimed that the opposition was responsible for all the good legislation passed in this province. When asked what was the policy of the Conservative party, he hedged.

Mr. Michener did not come to Monitor, having stopped off at Coronation. The meeting was closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Canada has at last introduced conscription, and will raise 50,000 to 100,000 men by selective draft.

The Squire's Sweetheart

— BY —

KATHARINE TYNAN

WARD, LOCK & CO. LIMITED
London, Melbourne and Toronto

Hilary led up unconsciously to what the Squire had to tell him about the Souths. He had asked first for the Egertons, talking of Dolly with a slightly conscious air, as though he were a little in love with her. It irritated the Squire, who was never irritable, especially with Hilary. He had a feeling that Dolly was none other the centre of a tragedy. At another time he would only have laughed. Hilary was incurably sentimental—always—when he was in love. It never seemed to affect his happiness or his digestion.

He answered curtly, to the golden youth's amazement. Hilary said nothing, only glanced at his cousin's profile in the half-light, wondering what had put him out. He had been so invariably sweet-tempered in Hilary's experience of him.

"After all," the boy went on "I am more concerned with Margaret. Why doesn't she write to me? I've written to her, but she has not answered me. What is happening about the Souths?"

The Squire told him. He was very glad the news was no worse, as he told. He himself had implicitly accepted Mr. Langton's explanation. The Souths were lying perdue for a time—to escape old Gilbert's brutality, and give the poor woman a chance of having her health patched up. It was not so dreadful to tell.

He had not anticipated that Hilary would take the tale of Margaret's ill-treatment. He was surprised at the boy's passion. Hilary raged and almost sobbed. Only the consciousness of the groups sitting at the other tables kept his emotion under control.

"Her poor little arms," he said. "I remember now how she winced and cried out when I clasped her wrists. To think I should not have known!"

The Squire left him to his emotions. Trains will not wait for belated travellers, and he must get the 8.15. He had a good deal to think of, this dreadful night when in his absence. As he stood up and went in search of his water he was wondering what Hilary would think if he knew how the Souths had retreated into the background of his life. He remembered Langton's firm lips. A man to guard and keep the women he cared for. While he had talked to Hilary he had had a vague sense of terror of he knew not what that might be happening in his absence to his own sweetheart, his poor, pretty Dolly, who had none to guard her but he.

Hilary drove with him to the station; it was not very far. The Squire was thinking his own thoughts as they drove along the Embankment to Westminster Bridge, with the lighted clock-tower high in the sky. Hilary had apparently forgotten his evening parties. He was wondering if he should find Mr. Langton at home if he were to take the taxi on. Very likely, the Squire thought, unless Langton was dining out or at his club. He had a vague passing wonder as to how Langton would receive the boy, who seemed to think that he had only to ask for Margaret's address to be given it.

But he was too much occupied with his own thoughts to heed what Hilary was saying, beyond a feeling of wonder that the youngster seemed to think he had a right.

CHAPTER X The Flower's Call

Coming out of Silverdale station, the Squire struck off into the fields—not on his way home, but the way that would take him to the New Cottage. He felt that he must see all was right there; Dolly sitting reading by the shaded lamp, or playing the piano with fingers somewhat spoilt with housework, or occupied with the child. She had been in the family circle of evenings since the dog's death. If he could assure himself with his own eyes that she was there and safe he could go home contentedly to bed, pushing away for a time at least that sense of menace which had followed him to London and come back with him.

He had picked up a number of papers casually from the bookstall at Victoria, just before it was closed. Lionel Egerton often grumbled at the absence of a bookstall from Silverdale station. They would make his excuse for coming if any were necessary. Perhaps, none was needed. He had come and gone pretty well as he would of late.

He knocked at the door of the New Cottage. Through the little window of bottle-ended glass at the right-hand side of the porch he caught sight of a blurred blue and green which must be Mrs. Egerton's gown. She always dressed for dinner, however simple the meal was, although he had seen her in tweeds or flannels or whatever he chanced to be wearing.

The door opened to his knock. It was Lionel Egerton who opened it. He and Mrs. Egerton were the sole occupants of the room. No Dolly! For some reason he could not explain, he had a heavy lead. He said to himself that he had known she would not be there. He had known it all the time.

He was no good at dissimulation. He could not sit down and talk indifferently, waiting for Dolly to come in from the other part of the house. Of course she was in the house. Probably with the baby upstairs, or in the kitchen doing something or other, or in the dining-room.

He laid down the papers on the little table by Mrs. Egerton's side. It was too late to stay, he said, with that curious new uneasiness upon him. There was a book for Miss Egerton, a new volume of poems about which he had heard her express curiosity.

"Oh, Dolly," said Mrs. Egerton, "you have come again and gone back to her cottage."

"She is working at some sketches of Susan for a Christmas number. Awfully jolly thing, you must see them. She prefers her loneliness when she is busy," put in Lionel Egerton.

"To our society," said Mrs. Egerton, with a little laugh.

"Oh, come, Louise," said Lionel Egerton rather shamefacedly. "Poor Dolly! I fear she thinks herself in the way here, with Darby and Joan. She would never be that poor little girl, but she's sensitive. I'll come over with you to the cottage, Meyrick. Sit it pleased at your remembering her; it's very kind of you."

"Please don't go, Leo," Mrs. Egerton said in haste. "You know I don't like to be left alone at night."

"Oh, I forgot, Louise has a nervous fit. Just imagine, Meyrick, she's in a faint about old Keeper. She won't look out of the staircase window as she goes up to bed lest she should see his ghost out there in the dark."

"He did not like me," said Mrs. Egerton, with a little shiver.

"Doll doesn't mind the ghosts a bit. You know about the little woman in the shawl who is always turning up there. Not many girls would care to live with such a housemate."

It was on the Squire's lips to say that no girl should be asked to live in such loneliness. But, after all, he knew nothing. Probably there was a quiet happiness for Dolly in the Old Cottage, and he did not suppose there was really anything in the story of the little woman in the shawl. Dolly often said odd things, with a certain wry humor in the expression of her lips which told that she would have been merry if she was a little happier.

"I will leave the book," he said, taking it from the table where he had put it down.

Egerton came outside with him and they stood a while talking.

"I was unwilling for Doll to go back to the cottage," he said apologetically. "But I thought it was best. She and I were once all in all to each other. It is very hard on the one who is left in those circumstances. I am sure I should have hated Dolly's husband—unless he'd been no end of a good fellow."

Through the gap in the privet hedge they could see the light of Dolly's lamp. After all, what reason was there to be afraid? Dolly was practically within earshot of the New Cottage. What could happen to her? The light from the open door shone out across the grass wet with dew. All the sounds and scents of a summer night were out of doors. From the cottage that the light a night-jar tickled melodiously; and a late blackbird disturbed the nests with his "Good-night now!" dangled with unimperturbable persistence. Beyond the boundary hedge of the garden were the fields, fields, enamelled these days with drifts of little blue flowers—the Squire had noticed that in part the fields were rather blue than green—blue flowers and white and golden, and the deep soft grass between.

Beautiful fields they were that stretched away to the hill, park-like fields, studded with spreading oaks and thorn-trees, the grazing-ground for a few cattle, deep-breathed, velvety creatures that moved softly through the quiet night.

Mrs. Jarvis says Dr. Cassell's Tablets cured her Delicate Child when nothing else could

Mrs. Jarvis, Box 286, Penstang, P.O., Ontario, writes: "It is a pleasure to tell you that Dr. Cassell's Tablets have done for my baby. When only five months old he fell ill, and though I had medical advice for him he got worse. I tried several special foods, but none of them would stay on his stomach, and he became so thin that he seemed just skin and bone. He only weighed 10 lbs., and we never thought he could live. But changing to Dr. Cassell's Tablets I got some for baby, and am thankful I did. He is a 25 lbs. at twelve months old."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of 5 cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold P. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10, McCaul-st., Toronto.

The Princess Pats

The West Can Claim Some Distinction in This Connection

Ottawa announces that the Princess Patricia's regiment is officially declared as belonging to the Ottawa-Kingston military district. That appears to be about the coolest piece of man-stealing the department has put over yet. Hitherto Alberta battalions have been broken up to supply men to fill the slackers' gaps in units claimed by towns scattered all the way from one ocean to the other, and drafts have been taken from Edmonton to enable Ottawa and Kingston to have the credit of being represented by units overseas.

But this seems to be the first instance in which a battalion has been stolen intact and put to the credit of a district having no shadow of claim to it. It is the more notable that the battalion in question has been longer at the front than any other Canadian unit, has suffered more, and has come to be the most widely known for its exploits. Montreal supplied the colour and western Canada the men for the original Princess Pats! Alberta contributing more men than any other province. Reinforcements have been recruited among the students at universities from McGill westward to Alberta, to which Ottawa university and Kingston may have contributed contingents but not disproportionately large ones.

On the face of it, therefore, if this regiment is to be allocated to any particular district Alberta has by all odds the rightful claim, and of all possible competitors the Ottawa-Kingston district has just about the least pretence of a claim.—From the Edmonton Bulletin.

"Brains are a common commodity." "That so?" "Yes. What I'm always looking for is a man who knows how to use his brains."

Point of View

Willis-Pleasure is all in the point of view.

Gillis—That's right. A man goes to a dance, leaves at twelve o'clock feeling fine and fresh, and calls it a good time; but a woman doesn't have a good time unless she stays until four o'clock, spends the last three hours in agony, and goes home feeling as if a steam-roller had run over her.—Life.

A Desperate Case

"Dear," said the fond mother, "I must punish you for disobeying my orders."

"Please ma," said the little boy, "may I go to my room first?" "Yes," consented the parent, and she cautiously followed her first-born upstairs. There Robert was kneeling by his bed, and his mother heard him say:

"Dear Lord, if You ever wanted to help a little fellow in trouble, now's Your chance."

The whipping was indefinitely postponed.—New York Times.

Note and Comment

The school assessment notices for this year have been sent out and a great many are complaining about the high assessment.

The Board of Trustees have decided to build a school, this summer, and to meet this increase in expenditure they had to increase the taxes. If any assessed too high, or maybe too low, he has the privilege of stating his case before the Court proper amount.

Many important changes are likely to be made in the training of the boys and girls, in the High Schools, in Commercial Courses. Owing to the heavy enlistments, many of the banks, wholesale houses and other industrial firms have been forced to hire help who have had very little preliminary training.

The teachers in the high schools maintain that the boys and girls should be kept in the schools as long as possible so as to better fit them for the various departments of office work. Special courses of ten months duration will be given in commercial studies and in stenographic subjects. Grade VIII pupils who are at least 16 years old, those who have passed any grade in high school and others who are at least 18 years of age will be admitted to these courses. Many of the returned soldiers are taking up the work along these lines so as to fit themselves for business. Many of them have already secured good positions, not only with municipal and government offices but also with private firms.

For Regenerated Belgium

Plans to Build Railroads Like Those of This Continent

Regenerated Belgium will model some of her important railway lines on the American plan. Railway capitalists of that outraged nation have sent an agent to America to study railroad operating methods, railway stops, and more especially, the important electric installations on trunk lines in various parts of the country. The name of this Belgian agent is Joseph Carlier. He is Assistant Professor of Railways at the University of Liege. Professor Carlier said he believed that at least $200,000,000 would be spent to place the railways of Belgium on a proper footing after the war, and that the United States would doubtless be called upon to supply a large part of the new equipment.

Mr. Carlier is also a member of the special commission, which was installed in Paris last fall, the members having been appointed by the Belgian minister, for the study of certification of the Belgian railways.

"We have approximately 8,000,000 people and a little over 3,000 miles of broad gauge, and about 4,500 miles of single-track railway. We have also a system of narrow-gauge railroads, something like 1,500 miles, for small freight traffic. Our freight stations are unusually long and very large. I think we should adopt many of your ideas as to car building. I think we shall have to make compartment cars for the most part. Belgium is a windy country, and we cannot very well have a long, one-room car such as you have in America, because it would be much too drafty."

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Have kept him Fit through Two Wars

Sapper A. Hartley, of the A. Company, Canadian Engineers, whose home address is 266, Trafalgar-street, London, Ontario, is one of the many who have written in praise of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. ## The Armies of Labor

Influence That Will Attract Soldiers to Farming

Love of life in the open is fostered by service on the field of battle, and this influence will attract many of the fighters of Europe to farming and the restoration of ravaged lands. The military experience will have increased the manual skill and technical efficiency of thousands of other soldiers. Modern agencies for the distribution of labor are more numerous and scientific than they were a century ago, a generation ago. We shall see the soldiers of Europe melting back into the armies of labor as did Cromwell's Ironsides in 1660, when it was said of some specially efficient and industrious worker that he was quite sure to have been "one of Oliver's men." —Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Make the Boy a Partner

Secure His Interest in the Business Side of the Farm Work

Six per cent. of the 400 farmers who were visited in connection with an agricultural survey by the Commission of Conservation in Dundas county in 1916, were paying members of the family who remained at home to work on the farm. No farmer was found who had taken the members of the family into active and actual partnership in the farm enterprise.

It is essential that many of our best boys remain on the farm and help in developing rural life into what it could and should be. Some of our farm boys may be better suited for occupations other than farming, but those who are suited for farming and wish to farm should be given encouragement to do so.

Boys on the farm are too often allowed to drift along with very little attention being paid to them. The boy will be more likely to become a willing worker if his interest is aroused in the business side of his work and he will gain ability to save if he is taught to spend thoughtfully and wisely. These two factors, will ingenuity to work and ability to save, are fundamental for future success. Permit the boy to participate in the practical business transactions of the farm as the conditions allow. Let him do some of the buying and selling. When he has decided that he will be a farmer, the father may be gradually relieved from some of his responsibilities through a partnership management.—F.C.N., in Conservation.

They have proved their power in numberless cases and have given relief to thousands of children, who, but for the good offices of this superior compound, would have continued weak and enfeebled.

A Just Tribute

The New York World would have the United States make a gift of $1,000,000,000 to France, as a proof of affection and appreciation of the aid given the colonials during the American revolution of 1776. It would be only a just tribute; for, according to a recent statement, they received $700,000,000 from France at that period, of which neither the principle nor the interest thereon was ever asked for or returned.—Hamilton Spectator.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS CURE CONSTIPATION

Childhood constipation can be promptly cured by Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets never fail to regulate the bowels and stomach thus curing constipation, colic, indigestion and the many other minor ills of little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Louis Nicole, St. Paul du Buton, Que., writes:—"My baby suffered from constipation but thanks to Baby's Own Tablets he is a fine healthy boy today. It gives me much pleasure in recommending the Tablets to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Municipal Hospitals Act

How to Incorporate a Hospital District and Provide for Operation of a Hospital

Under the Municipal Hospitals Act passed at the recent Session of the Legislature, the Minister of Municipal Affairs is authorized to divide the Province into Hospital Districts.

He is also charged with the responsibility of supplying plans specifications, estimates, advice on sites and management and such other assistance as he may be able to give. The bringing into existence of a hospital depends upon the initiative of the people. When only one municipality is concerned, all that is necessary to initiate action is a petition signed by twenty-five electors and agreed to by the municipal council. When more than one council is concerned, the consent of the other council or councils is necessary, as well as the petition from the electors within the municipality. The preliminary work being done, the council shall appoint a hospital board. In the case of one municipality undertaking the work, the board shall consist of three members of the council and three electors outside the council. When there are two municipalities in the proposed district each council shall appoint three representatives, one being a member of the council, and two electors not councillors.

When the appointments are made the names are sent to the Minister who names a convenor and the place and date of meeting for organization.

The board has power—

To appoint such officials as may be necessary and fix the amount of remuneration;

To determine the site and arrange for purchase of same;

To arrange for the acquiring or erection of a suitable building;

To make arrangements with any existing hospital, if preferred to undertake the establishment and maintenance of a separate institution;

To engage medical practitioners and nurses;

To arrange for financing the hospital, the preparation of estimates, etc., the municipality providing the money as for other municipal enterprises.

The levy for capital expenditure shall not be higher than two mills on the dollar.

As soon as the plans are approved by the Minister of Municipal Affairs, the council shall prepare a by-law for submission to the electors, which must be voted on within three months.

For full information as to how to arrange for and conduct a Municipal Hospital under this Act, apply to

JOHN PERRIE,
Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, Edmonton.
